Office of the Public Guardian

Service	Helps with	Service area	Clients
Investigations team	We can investigate allegations of harm against people with impaired capacity. This includes all types of abuse, which can be: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • physical, sexual, psychological or financial abuse • neglect such as withholding medication or not providing regular food • exploitation such as taking advantage of someone. The Public Guardian will refer allegations of a criminal nature to the Queensland Police Service, particularly domestic violence offences. Our role is to investigate whether the current decision-making arrangements provide an adult with impaired capacity with the appropriate assistance and protection from the alleged abuse, as opposed to being punitive against the alleged perpetrator. Some of the complaints we receive are about concerns that an attorney, for example under an EPA, for a person with impaired capacity is not acting in their interests. We have powers under the Public Guardian Act to utilise during an investigation including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • requiring people to produce records and accounts • gaining access to any relevant information such as medical files • issuing a summons ordering a person who has been uncooperative to provide information • applying for an entry and removal warrant if a person is at immediate risk of harm • being able to suspend an attorney’s power. Our investigation will gather evidence to find out whether the allegations can be substantiated on the balance of probabilities. The purpose of an investigation is to identify the level of risk for the vulnerable person and the action needed to best protect them. Where possible, we try to resolve allegations informally. If necessary, we refer evidence to the police for their investigation or other matters to the Queensland Civil and Administrative Tribunal.	all of Queensland	Adults with impaired capacity for the decision that needs to be made.

Call the OPG with any concerns about an adult with impaired decision-making capacity T: 1300 653 187.

If you think someone is being abused, report it immediately. Ring police straight away on triple zero (000) if you think someone is in imminent danger of harm.

You should also raise your concerns with any agencies involved with the adult’s care so that they can take appropriate action.

Decisions to appoint a formal guardian or administrator for an adult with impaired capacity is a matter of QCAT. For this to happen, an application has to be made to QCAT to determine the most appropriate person to make decisions for the adult.

This could be someone from the adult’s supportive network, such as a family member or a friend, or it could be the Public Guardian (as last resort) if there is no one else suitable.
